

Abstract of the Disclosure

An improved hair treatment method and apparatus minimizes the contact of toxic compositions with the scalp and facilitates the post-treatment removal of such compositions. The method utilizes a thin elastic strip of material that is provided with 5 a fastening system that functions to maintain hair treatment chemicals and other chemicals away from the scalp and that functions to remove excess quantities of such chemicals from a customer's hair at the conclusion of a hair treatment.